O'Brien's Girl Aide Had Cash Box Key, Witness Tells Jury

Former Mayor James M. O'Brien, as city treasurer of Revere, sometimes made entries on the tax title books, Miss Mary Cox, chief clerk in the office, testified today in superior court at O'Brien's trial.

The former treasurer and mayor is charged with larceny and embezzlement in connection with a shortage of $13,277.04 in his accounts as treasurer.

Ex-Mayor O'Brien

It was testified yesterday that $12,401 of the money was mysteriously "found" after a shortage had been announced, but that $1900 of the "found" cash was in bills issued eight weeks after starting of the state audit.

HAD OFFICE KEYS

Today Miss Cox, employed for 17 years in the treasurer's office, described how Miss Josephine Farrell, secretary to the mayor and formerly with him as treasurer, went into the city treasury vault and came out with a green metal cash-box containing the "found" cash.

Miss Farrell counted the money and got a total of $12,401, the witness said. Then Miss Farrell replaced the money, locked the box and put it back in the vault.

According to the witness, Miss Farrell had keys and access to the treasurer's office.

Regarding the treasurer's books and accounts, Miss Cox said the girl clerks and bookkeepers usually made the entries but that sometimes O'Brien himself would make entries in the tax title records.

It was testified yesterday that after O'Brien had ceased to be treasurer and had become mayor, two persons called at the treasurer's office with complaints and it was discovered tax title payments they had made, totaling nearly $2400, were not credited to them on the books.

Miss Cox testified today that cash usually was kept in the treasurer's office, for payrolls and running expenses.

During Revere's "payless pay-

McGlue Trial Off to May 9

Trial of Charles H. McGlue, former chairman of the Democratic state committee and one time head of the state ballot law commission, was postponed today until May 9.

McGlue will face federal court on an indictment charging him with failure to file an income tax return on an alleged total of $34,909 in 1935. He was arraigned March 9, and pleaded not guilty. Judge Hugh D. McCellan set the trial date after McGlue's counsel, former Assistant U. S. Attorney William H. Lewis, asked for a delay, and U. S. Attorney Henry M. Lyen assented.

House Group Blocks Island Defense Plans

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—Navy plans to establish a system of air bases in the western Pacific struck a snag today when a House appropriations subcommittee sidetracked the administration's request for funds to start the work on four islands.

Chairman Scrugham (D.) of Nevada said the group had decided against inclusion in the regular naval supply bill of funds for bases proposed for Midway, Wake, Palmyra and Johnston Islands. He indicated, however, that the items might be considered later this session by another subcommittee.

GIRL, 12, BATTLES KIDNAPER, ESCAPES

NORTH ANDOVER, May 2—Kidnaped by a man in an automobile today, 12-year-old Charlotte Leland, daughter of a Boston wool merchant, battled the driver so fiercely that he was compelled to let her out a mile and a half away.

The plucky girl, screaming, scratching at her abductor, pulling at the steering wheel and punching at the automobile horn finally forced the driver to pull to the curb, open the door and push her out.

Charlotte, daughter of E. J. Leland, Jr., ran to the home of Mrs. Agnes Stevens in Great Pond road. Mrs. Stevens called Andover police, who notified state troopers at Andover barracks, from where a teletype alarm had been sent only a short time before.

FRIEND GIVES ALARM

The abducted girl later told troopers she believed she had scratched the man's face during her wild mile and a half ride.

She and Joan Sweeney, also 12, were riding their bicycles at Chestnut and Andover streets when the automobile, brown and with black fenders, stopped.

The man driving called to the girls to get in. When they refused, he jumped out of the car, they said, seized Charlotte, pushed her into the auto and drove away.

Joan ran to a telephone and called her father. He telephoned Andover state police barracks and gave the alarm. A teletype request was sent out immediately to watch for the kidnap car.

HER DESPERATE BATTLE

Meanwhile, Charlotte was battling her kidnaper as the car sped along Route 114, toward U. S. Route 1, the Portland-Boston main highway.

She screamed, she said, punched at him with her small fists, tore at him with her nails, seized the steering wheel and twisted it, and occasionally got in a punch at the horn button.

The man, she said, attempted to drive with one hand and hold her with the other, but so successful was her battle and so erratic his course along the road that he finally cursed and screamed his brakes in a stop, pushing her out to freedom.

Joan and Charlotte told police the man wore gray striped trousers, black shoes, a brown felt hat and a brown leather jacket.

Maine Doctor's Car Injures 8 in Crash

LEWISTON, Me., May 2 (AP)—Eight persons were injured, four seriously, today when a physician's automobile, speeding ahead of an ambulance which was carrying a man to a hospital for an emergency operation, collided at Hackett's mills with a coupe containing seven persons.

At Central Maine Hospital here, the physician, Dr. Walter Dixon of Norway, was found to have a possible skull fracture and lacerations.

Waltham Has 2nd Auto Death of Year

Waltham recorded its second automobile death of the year today when John A. Hayes, 78, resident of a community near St. John's, Nfld, died of injuries suffered Saturday when struck by a car.

He had been visiting relatives here.

High Taxes Peril Hub Industry, Says A. Lawrence Lowell

Sounding a stern warning that "Boston is selling its birthright for a mess of political pottage," A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University and one of the city's most distinguished citizens, high-lighted the budget protest meeting of the Boston Taxpayers Alliance at Faneuil Hall today.

Distinguished, firm of voice despite his advanced age, Doctor Lowell was cheered to the echo when he took the rostrum in the historic assembly room, crowded with representatives of scores of organizations, all determined to register protest against increasing costs of government.

Dr. Lowell was stern as he told of Boston's past glories, of what has been lost in the near past, and of a none too bright future.

"Sir George Trevelyan tells a tale of a boy who took his master's gamecocks to the pit," he began. "When he got there he found they had torn themselves to bits. The boy remarked: 'They should have known they were on the same side.' The same is true of Boston today.

"Any city should be proud of Boston's history. Independence began here on this spot. Large scale manufacturing began within 10 miles of Boston, and was planned in Boston. The greatest clipper ships in the world were built just across this harbor"—and he gestured out towards the docks and beyond the market place.

"We led the world," he continued, "but today American shipping doesn't compare with European shipping.

"There is not a single large shipping line with headquarters in Boston. Manufacturing on a large scale has deserted us and gone West.

"All of us, citizens of Boston, are in the same boat. If she

Marines Open Recruit Drive

A call to arms was sounded by the Marine Corps today, with receipt of a general order from Washington to recruit Uncle Sam's soldiers of the sea to full strength.

Applicants must be between 18 and 30, at least 5 feet 4 inches tall, and not more than 6 feet 2 inches, must be sound mentally and physically, and of good character in order to take advantage of the training opportunities in the service, it was announced at recruiting headquarters here, in the new Postoffice building.

192 Employes Told To Produce Records

The Division of Unemployment Compensation today began hearings throughout the state at which 192 employers will be ordered to produce wage records. J. Edwin Doyle, director, said he has scheduled 17 hearings within 10 days to produce records so pending claims may be paid former employes.

FRITZI BARTONI

Circus Queen Fights For Life; Act 13 Out

Blond Fritzi Bartoni may never again defy death from a towering aerial trapeze. Doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital today withheld definite decision on the fate of the pretty circus queen as they examined four fractures she suffered in a 40-foot plunge that brought shrieks of horror from 16,000 awed circus spectators at Boston Garden.

VICTORIA
In Tragic Spot, No. 13

Meanwhile, officials of Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey's circus grimly announced that Display No. 13 the billing of Miss Bartoni's act and that of another major stunt which also ended tragically a few weeks ago—would never again appear on the circus program.

LETTER REPLACES '13'

The aerial act will go, they said, with Victoria and Torrence replacing the injured trapeze artist, but a letter will be substituted for the fateful "13."

Whether the pretty aerialist is through at 29 years of age depends on the outcome of fractures of the left leg, three vertebrae of the back, a rib and the pelvis, doctors indicated.

Miss Bartoni's husband, Lombard, was the only caller allowed in her room today. He had placed hospital corridors for hours until reassured by physicians, and then made arrangements to give his blood if a transfusion were considered necessary.

Other men and women of her world-famed Swiss aerial company hurried to the hospital, coats hastily thrown over their circus costumes, to offer their blood.

Circus officials said the aerial star's plunge came when she missed a bar as she executed a back-fall knee catch.

The knee catch was preliminary to an even more daring feat in which she would have turned a forward flip, catching herself by the heels on the bar as the climax of her presentation.

Instead she missed the catch and plummeted to the sawdust ring below. Her husband rushed forward in an attempt to break her fall, but was too late.

As he reached her side he picked her up and handed her over to attendants who carried her hurriedly from the ring.

13TH ON PROGRAM

The band burst into music. Another act was hurriedly substituted in the center ring and the show went on.

But superstitious circus folk saw in her fall the inexorable working out of tragedy in threes. That and the billing of the act as 13th on the program.

She was substituted as the feature aerialist after the circus star was injured in a fall in New York.

WAR MOTHERS ASK PEACE—BUT NOT AT ANY PRICE

Declaring for peace, but "not at any price," 450 World War mothers met at the Hotel Brunswick today in the ninth annual convention of the Massachusetts Chapter.

"The World War mothers hope that there will never be the need for another organization such as this one in this country," said Mrs. Mae I. Jones of Newton Upper Falls, the president, as the two-day session opened.

"Mothers who have sons in hospitals, many of them unable to recognize their mothers, really want peace—but not at any price.

"We would not sacrifice liberty and freedom for peace, and we would want our sons to fight again if this country were invaded.

"But we would not want them to fight again on a foreign shore."

Organization elections were scheduled later in the day, with installation of officers tomorrow. A banquet is to be given tonight, with Mayor Tobin heading the list of speakers, and Governor Saltonstall invited to attend.

On the agenda of the convention is drafting of a resolution urging the United States to steer clear of foreign entanglements. The resolution is to be forwarded to Senators Henry Cabot Lodge and David I. Walsh.

Proposes Coolidge Memorial in Vermont

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—A memorial to former President Coolidge at his birthplace in Plymouth, Vt., was proposed today by Senator Gibson (R.), of Vermont.

Hard Quake May Be Near Mexico

CLEVELAND, May 2 (INS)—The seismograph at John Carroll University today registered a violent earthquake in the vicinity of Mexico City.

PASADENA, Cal., May 2 (AP)—The California Institute of Technology seismological laboratory determined today that a severe earthquake, recorded at many points in the United States, centered in the Gulf of Lower California.

MINERAL, Cal., May 2 (AP)—Reports long-dormant Lassen peak, mainland America's only active volcano, was belching steam and smoke, sent a national parks naturalist hastening to the scene north of here today.

TOKYO, May 2 (AP)—The first survey of earthquake-stricken areas today showed 19 known dead, hundreds missing and injured, the 70 houses of the village of Aikawa reported swallowed by the sea, and more than 1000 homes destroyed or damaged.

The terror of the quake, which centered about 300 miles north of Tokyo yesterday, was heightened by fire and flood.

Frank Walsh, Noted Labor Lawyer, Dies

NEW YORK, May 2 (INS)—Frank P. Walsh, one of America's foremost labor lawyers and chairman of the New York State Power Authority, was stricken with a sudden heart attack and died on the sidewalk outside the State Supreme Court building today.

50 Flee Blaze In Greenfield

GREENFIELD, May 2 (AP)—Fifty guests fled to safety early today as fire of undetermined origin swept through the Hotel Winslow in the central business district and destroyed two stores.

Firemen estimated the loss at $40,000.

While smoke filled the lobby and flames spread to the upper floors, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stears, proprietors, remained at the hotel switchboard until they aroused every guest.

Greenfield fire-fighting forces were aided by apparatus from Amherst and Turners Falls.

The blaze was discovered by Patrolman Stanley Martin.

A drug store and a Chinese laundry on the first floor were destroyed and an electrical shop suffered smoke and water damage.

Real Life Detective Thriller Traps Writer of 200 Threats

NEW YORK, May 2 (INS)—Talbot D. Harrison, 45, a mild-mannered father of six children who daily dished out thousands of nickels from his change booth to hurrying subway passengers, was under observation in Bellevue Hospital today as the suspected author of 200 hand-written letters threatening harm to President Roosevelt and other prominent persons.

The arrest revealed one of the most amazing pieces of detective work ever encountered outside of the most lurid and unreal works of fiction.

Study of postmarks of the letters which were mailed over a three-year period convinced secret service agents their author resided on Long Island and changed trains in Brooklyn to reach lower Manhattan where he worked.

Finally they narrowed their clues down to Hempstead, L. I., and then to a daily commuters' train. All passengers were one day asked to sign and answer a fictitious questionnaire. After a study of signatures, Harrison was arrested.

With Harrison's arrest as he finished work last night, it was disclosed the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. had been under special guard since September 28, when it received a warning, threatening a more disastrous explosion than the one which killed 30 persons in 1920.

Others threatened were Mayor F. L. LaGuardia, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., head G-man J. Edgar Hoover, Police Chief James H. Ricker of Hempstead, L. I., where Harrison lives, and the Pinkerton Detective Agency.

Police said Harrison explained he had become mentally upset by a quarrel with neighbors.

SHOW GOES ON—Tragedy ever stalks the big top. An aerialist falls . . . another act is hurried into the spot, clowns grow more feverishly funny, the band blares louder. So, into the tragic No. 13 spot of injured Fritzi Bartoni the act of Victoria and Torrence, above, swings. The show goes on.

Wellesley Girls Raid Crimson Campus, Doll Up John Harvard

Doughty Dianas of Wellesley struck back at Harvard today.

Determined not to accept without retaliation the affront of a mere male having won the annual Wellesley hoop race while in disguise, five Amazons crept into Harvard Yard as dawn gilded the chapel cupola and, without more ado, draped the bronze shoulders of none other than John Harvard himself with a Wellesley gown.

Then, to further stress the point—to wit, that the Wellesley lassies didn't think it entirely unseemly that a Harvardian should win the whoops, my dear, race—they placed a hoop in his hand.

Pleased at this demonstration of the indubitable fact that they are women, not Minnie Mices, they started a retreat, but, Harvard Yard police, weary after a night-long wrangle between the rival forces of the Lampoon and the Crimson, trapped them.

TRUCE WITH DAWN

Now, what's a Harvard Yard cop to do when he traps five Wellesley gals within the sacred precincts?

No satisfactory answer presenting itself immediately to Col. Charles R. Apted—one does not spank Wellesley Rosalinds, no matter how fair!—he compromised by confiscating the corpus delicti, taking the names of the delectables, and escorting them home to their own playground with a stern warning to stay there.

All of this followed a most hectic night, marked by kidnapings, riots, incendiary fires, etc., in the fight between the Daily Crimson and the Harvard Lampoon.

Truce came at dawn when Edward C. K. Read, the winner, incidentally, of the Wellesley hoop roll, stumbled into the comic magazine offices after escaping in stocking feet from his kidnapers in Allston, two miles away.

EDITORS LIBERATED

His return was the signal for loyal Lampoon editors to liberate three Crimson officials who were seized in a retaliatory raid on the newspaper office following Read's disappearance.

The trio, Managing Editor Sheffield West, Robert Groves and Arthur Goldsmith, were taken down from meat hooks in the Lampoon's elaborate basement ice-box and set free by Read himself.

According to the Crimson account, presented in Read's "own words," the Lampoon president was snatched by a gang of ruffians, supposedly hired by angry Wellesley students in return for Read's surprising victory in the girls' college hoop race. He wore a blond wig and shirt to outrun the Wellesley seniors in their May Day event.

WAR over the custody of 3-year-old Pamela Johnson, shown here, was on today between her maternal grandmother and her father, Salem coast guard flier. Pamela's grandmother, Mrs. Marion Richardson of Medford, seeks permanent custody of the child.

GRANDMA FIGHTS TO KEEP CHILD, 3

Wild-eyed and bewildered little Pamela Johnson, 3½ years old, will be the object of a court battle when a custody petition now on file reaches a hearing on May 17, it was disclosed today.

By order of a Florida court, she is now living with her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Marion H. Richardson of Summit avenue, Medford.

She is supposed to live with Mrs. Richardson from September to May of each year, with her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Allie Johnson of California, the other half of each year until her majority.

In one of the most unusual legal actions ever brought in this state, Mrs. Richardson seeks to get permanent custody.

Pamela is the daughter of Reinhold Johnson, 32, a coast guard aviator stationed at Salem, and Mrs. Marion Burns Johnson of Medford.

When the parents were divorced in a Florida court, Judge R. Pope Reeves, in an unprecedented ruling, took custody from both the parents and ordered the child should be shared by both her grandmothers.

In Mrs. Richardson's petition, she states that taking Pamela away from her for six months a year would constitute a cruelty.

"The child has never seen or known Mrs. Johnson," she says.

Howland Begins Life Term In N. H. for $6 Murder

CONCORD, N. H., May 2—John H. Howland, 25, sailor-convict and confessed murderer, saw the gates of state prison close on him for life today—resigned to his fate, and happy that he had escaped hanging.

Stoically he accepted a life in prison rather than gamble on the testimony of his 15-year-old cousin, Aida Butler, who announced she was determined to tell the whole story of the slaying of Miss Maude Horne, 61, in a Milton farmhouse on February 3 for $6 in cash.

Aida was the girl he forced to run away with him after the brutal murder; the girl he compelled to do his every bidding in a 20-state flight to Texas.

Told that the prosecution would ask the extreme penalty—banking heavily on the testimony of the young school girl he had held in his power for eight weeks—the former sailor murmured "guilty" to the Horne murder in Strafford Superior Court at Dover.

Long before Judge Aloysius J. O'Connor opened the special session of court, the small room was jammed with eager spectators, the majority of them women. Howland, who had been brought over from the local jail, took his seat in a jury box flanked by deputy sheriffs.

Defense Counsel Thomas McGreal, who had previously conferred in the lobby with Judge O'Connor and County Solicitor John Bemis, announced his client wished to change his plea, to which Howland agreed when questioned by Clerk William H. Roberts.

Howland flushed and then paled, when sentence was imposed, slumping back into his seat, but in a moment pulled himself together. He refused to make a statement.

CALL BOSTON COPS IN EVERETT STRIKE

With more than 200 striking seamen milling ominously along the Mystic river waterfront in Everett, 25 Boston police were rushed there in squad cars today at the request of Mayor Frank E. Lewis of Everett.

Nearby Malden, Medford and Somerville police departments also were asked to stand by with emergency reinforcements and riot equipment.

The Boston officers were sent under orders from Supt. Edward W. Fallon, who said he would stand by for further developments in the threatened area, as tension grew hourly.

TROOPS MAY BE NEEDED

Declaring the Boston officers would remain in Everett only long enough to meet the emergency, and that troops would have to be called if the crisis promised to be long drawn out, Fallon despatched three dozen tear gas bombs to the sector, near where five tankers are anchored in the river.

Dexter and Roberts streets, scene of strike violence within the past few days, formed the focal point for the picketing seamen, who jeered and hooted as strike leaders hanged an effigy of an agent for strike breaking labor to a telephone pole.

First break in the tense situation came when 25 pickets were arrested, transported to the Everett police station in patrol wagons borrowed from the Malden and Somerville police departments, and booked on charges of loitering.

The effigy hanging was open token of the growing animosity of strikers toward a Bow street, Everett, employment agency which has been supplying strikebreakers to one oil company. The Everett City Council earlier in the day asked the Board of Aldermen to revoke the agency' license, and the aldermen were to act on the request at their meeting tomorrow night.

Meanwhile a 55-year-old nonunion seaman, Edward B. Nolan, 41 Perry street, Lexington, was in Malden hospital suffering from the effects of a bad beating given him by five men on Highland avene, Malden, early this morning.

Nolan told police he had signed on the crew of the Standard Oil Tanker "Comet" in a Boston hotel the night before.

FIVE FINED $25 EACH

In Everett the situation steadily grew more grave, despite $25 fines meted out to five pickets on double charges of hurling missiles and malicious destruction of property.

The men fined were Charles E. Kimball, 36, Waterford street, Boston; Joseph Grady, 35, Border street, East Boston; Joseph Murphy, 30, Hawthorne road, Somerville; Albert Blum, 36, Okeechobee City, Fla., and Nicholas Pullaro, 32, Hudson street, Charlestown.

BILL ASKS RFC BAN ON PLANT-MOVE LOAN

WASHINGTON, May 2 (INS)—Protesting the contemplated removal of a textile plant from Washington to the South with funds borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Senator Green (D., R. I.) today introduced in the Senate a bill to prohibit United States loans for relocating plants.

At the same time, Senator Green addressed to RFC Chairman Jesse Jones a letter asking him to withhold final issuance of a pending loan until the Senate acts on his bill.

Senator Green told Jones that a Rhode Island firm had advised him that the RFC had tentatively approved a $1,700,000 loan to a New York firm operating a plant in Massachusetts to build a finishing plant in the South.

"My correspondent," Green continued, "very properly drew attention to the fact that if this were done a grave injustice would result.

"The situation is a serious one. Three such plants have recently been dismantled in my own state. As a result those formerly employed there were added to the ranks of the unemployed."

3 'Lost' Boys Picking Posies

Safe at home again after six hours of aimless wanderings in search of wild flowers, three Randolph children today promised relieved parents they would stray no more.

The children, Richard Pemberton, eight; John DeAngelis, six, and Domenick Esposito, six, all of Maitland avenue, were sought by more than 70 men and women through the woods near Great pond, Randolph.

Finally found near a roadside stand by Police Chief Patrick J. McDonnell, they admitted hunger had supplanted their interest in flowers and were each given a hot dog before being returned home.

NAZIS OPEN DRIVE ON POLES

BERLIN, May 2 (INS)—The Nazi press began today to whip public indignation against Poland on the Danzig and Polish corridor questions as Hungary was brought squarely within the German orbit and Adolf Hitler retired to Berchtesgaden to ponder his next move.

The onslaught was led by Der Angriff, Propaganda Minister Goebbels' paper. It turned its heaviest fire on articles in Warsaw government papers intimating Poland would demand a wider outlet to the Baltic.

Der Angriff characterized as "amazing and dangerous impudence" suggestions that German Upper Silesia should be incorporated into the corridor to widen the sea outlet at Germany's expense.

The influential Boersen Zeitung took much the same line, declaring:

"Poland's appetite seems to have been whetted by the blank check handed it by Great Britain."

The press in general blamed "western war-mongers" for inciting Poland to an attitude of defiance against Germany's allegedly "just claims" in Danzig and the corridor.

Poles Tighten Defenses, Plan War Decrees

WARSAW, May 2 (INS)—Determined to resist German demands for restoration of Danzig to the Reich and for a broad right-of-way across the Polish corridor Premier General Felicjan Slawoj-Skaladkowski's cabinet moved swiftly today to buttress Poland's defenses.

The cabinet decided to propose Parliament confer upon President Moscicki extraordinary powers governing defense, economic matters and financial regulations.

Under the proposal he would be empowered to issue decrees, excepting on questions affecting the parity of Polish currency.

The President's powers would remain effective until the convention of the Sejm (Parliament) next autumn.

Suggestions for a Polish protectorate over Danzig left little doubt in the minds of observers that the government is planning strong resistance to Hitler's demands.

The call for Polish control of Danzig was sounded by influential sections of the press following the return of Ambassador Josef Lipski to Warsaw from Berlin.

U. S. Considers '12-Mile Limit'

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—The state department, it was learned today, is investigating the national defense value of establishing a 12-mile zone of territorial waters around the United States.

This extension of the present three-mile limit of coastal control was proposed to the department by Chairman Pittman (D.) of Nevada of the Senate foreign relations committee.

"If we allow submarines and warships within three miles of our shore during a foreign war," Pittman said, "some of our ships will be sunk. And we don't want war within three miles of our shores."

Beck is scheduled to deliver an important statement to Parliament Friday.

Lindbergh Sees U. S. In Grave Peril in Air

LANGLEY FIELD, Va., May 2 (INS)—Fresh from a week's flying survey of U. S. military air bases, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh warned government officials today that "unless we get going, we won't catch up with Germany in five years" in the aviation research activity that has given that country the mightiest air force in the world.

Lindbergh's warning was made as he accompanied 250 representatives of the aviation industry to inspect at Langley Field the only aeronautical research facilities possessed by the federal government.

His advice was renewed even after he witnessed the first demonstration of a new "wonder wing" perfected by Langley engineers, which is expected to increase the speed of fighting airplanes to 500 miles an hour.

The Langley field "show" staged by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, which supervises government aviation research, also lifted the curtain for the first time on a half dozen other significant flying discoveries. These included a method to use non-inflammable fuel, elimination of the tailspin and installation of landing gear on seaplanes.

Lindbergh's warning, punctuated with gestures of earnestness and sincerity, was spoken as he dined with a party including Senator Pat McCarran (D.) of Nevada, author of the Civil Aviation Act; Admiral Emory S. Land, the colonel's cousin and chairman of the Maritime Commission; Harry F. Guggenheim, NACA member.

The gravity with which Lindbergh viewed the plight of this country in aviation research—which translates into military air power—was emphasized by this statement, made to a member of the dinner party:

"I (he was quoted as saying) have no plans for returning to Europe. I am having uniforms made (Lindbergh has been called to active duty with the Army Air Corps) and will be available for any service to which I may be called."

He reiterated the promise, made privately to NACA last week, to appear before any congressional committees that want to hear him on the desirability of the $4,000,000 Sunnyvale, Cal., research laboratory, turned down by Congress.

HITLER'S AGENTS EXILED BY BRITAIN

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—Great Britain advanced efforts to check the spread of Nazi doctrine within her own borders today by ordering the expulsion of an undetermined number of "undesirable" German residents.

At the same time she proceeded with her measure for conscription by tackling delicate questions raised with Ireland by that step, and pursued her negotiation of European alliances—twin indications that Adolf Hitler had not changed Britain's policy by his Reichstag speech of last Friday.

The home office disclosed that it had sent to the German embassy a new list of Nazis living in Britain who were not wanted here because of their "individual activities."

Some sources declared each person in the list had been communicated with personally and ordered to leave the country within a fortnight.

NAZI LEADERS OUSTED

The development followed the promise of home secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, April 6, that Nazi activities in Britain would be closely watched and the announcement that steps were being taken against three members of Nazi organizations in London.

It was learned that these three members, who already have left Britain, were the head of the Nazi party in the United Kingdom O. G. Karlowa; his second in command, E. P. Himmelmann, and Fraulein Anna Joanna Wolf, an official of a Nazi travel group.

Sir Samuel's promise was made in the House of Commons when questions were asked about the activities of the woman who was alleged to have sent intimidating letters to other German residents in Britain.

(Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter said the list contained nine names and hinted at German reprisals.)

BRITONS EXPELLED

Berlin countered the first three expulsions by ordering three British business men who had been living in Germany for years to leave.

With quick enactment of compulsory military training forecast, Prime Minister Chamberlain arranged to discuss details of the possible conscription of Ulstermen with Viscount Craigavon, premier of Northern Ireland.

At the same time J. W. Dulanty, Irish high commissioner in London, went to Dublin to discuss the question with Prime Minister De Valera.

The strained position between Britain and Ireland arose from Craigavon's assertion that "Loyalists (of the six counties of Northern Ireland still joined to England) would deeply resent any attempt to exclude them" from conscription.

The text of the conscription bill made public last night authorized King George to apply the act to Northern Ireland.

It was believed a compromise would be worked out, however, by an understanding that it would not be applied there through an order in council except in an actual emergency.

Unofficial estimates at Belfast said of 8000 in Northern Ireland who would be affected by the measure, 2000 would object.

If a satisfactory arrangement was worked out with Northern Ireland, however, it was still expected De Valera would object to conscription of Irishmen working in England.

Expelling Nazis Stir's Hitler's Ire

BERLIN, May 2 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter today promised an answer for what it termed "shabby" treatment of nine Germans ordered expelled from Britain.

The Reichsfuehrer's paper declared:

"Nine respectable German men and women who have pursued their occupations on British soil in a peaceful and proper manner are being chased out of the country because the British government does not dare to oppose agitators and declare openly that German organizations are not in the slightest blameworthy.

"It need not be particularly emphasized that the German motherland will not leave unanswered this shabby and, for a great 'humanitarian' nation, unworthy treatment of her German nationals abroad."

Britain Pays Germans—Not U. S. War Debt

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—An opposition member raised the question of payment of war debts to the United States during debate in Commons today.

The question came when War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha disclosed that the British government was paying royalties to the German government on patents of the Bren machine-gun, formerly held by Czechoslovakia.

Laborite T. M. Sexton asked:

"Is the minister aware that we are not only increasing German military strength by raw materials, but also the financial strength of that country by continuing these payments?"

"That may be so, but it is not customary for this country to repudiate payments which have been legally contracted," Hore-Belisha replied.

"What about America?" an unidentified Laborite shouted.

There was no answer.

Bren machine-guns are being manufactured in England, with royalties paid the patentholders.

$50,000 Campaign For Refugees Opens

Protestant clergymen and prominent laymen today sought $50,000, following the launching of the first Greater Boston campaign in behalf of Christian refugees from Nazi Germany.

Headed by the Very Rev. Philemon F. Sturgis, D. D., dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, the Boston Committee included: Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, vice-chairman; Roger C. Damon, treasurer; John E. Lawrence, campaign chairman, and Dr. David Lalshaw, secretary.

OH BOY!—Even royalty can't be denied the pleasure of poring over maps. Here King George and Queen Elizabeth of England look at some of the spots they'll visit on North American tour. They are aided by Princess Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, who—drat it!—won't make the trip.

Newton Vet Charges Sent to Prosecutor

District Attorney Robert F. Bradford and the state police have been given information in the cases of two Newton soldiers' relief investigators alleged to have mistreated the daughter of a war veteran they railroaded to a hospital as insane.

This was revealed by Major Frank T. McCabe, U. S. A., retired, a Newton alderman, at the weekly meeting of the board before which, in March, he charged that Mayor Edwin O. Childs' "Stooge No. 3 and Stooge No. 3A" were running the relief department.

MAKES NEW CHARGES

In his latest revelations, Major McCabe told the aldermen that the commissioner of state aid had investigated his charges and had turned the resulting information over to state police and the county prosecutor.

New charges by Major McCabe included one that the police investigator Mayor Childs assigned to the case spent most of his time going around with the stooges he was supposed to investigate.

The major moved for an investigation of soldiers' relief administration in Newton by the board of aldermen, with a committee of three probers to be appointed, one a war veteran. The order was adopted unanimously.

Originally the alderman alleged that "Stooge No. 3" had his aide, "Stooge No. 3A," place the Newton veteran in the mental ward at the Chelsea Soldiers' Home.

$6900 IN 16 MONTHS

Eventually he was discharged as sane, but while he was absent from home, Major McCabe charged, the stooges installed a housekeeper and a comely assistant to the housekeeper.

Then "Stooge No. 3A" moved in as caretaker with the housekeeper, assistant housekeeper and the three motherless daughters of the veteran.

"On March 6, I gave the board a mild report of repulsive and dishonest practices by two of the mayor's pals, Stooge No. 3 and 3A," said Major McabeC in his latest attack before the aldermen.

"He laughed that off for a while. Again on March 20 I gave out figures of the amounts paid personally to Stooge No. 3 for 1938. This amount is now $6900.59 up to April 30, 1939— a total of 16 months.

"This is exclusive of any money derived from cases the stooge settled with the mayor's protection and approval. Look at the city treasurer's payrolls.

DO AS THEY PLEASE

"The mayor appointed a special investigator from the police department. This special investigator spent most of his time with Stooge No. 3, visiting outer-city cases who have Newton settlements.

"These are divided into beneficiaries (those who submit) and victims (those who do not submit).

"There are many nasty true stories connected with these cases. Beneficiaries, of course, receive more coin than the victims.

"As I stated before, the mayor fosters, sponsors and protects his stooges. His loyalty to them is unquestioned.

"They can do just as they please in several departments, destroying efficiency and morale —and Mr. Taxpayer pays the freight."

Infant Death Rate Falls

Deaths among infants have reached the lowest point in the history of Massachusetts, while births show a sharp increase, Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook revealed today.

Cook reported that there were 890 more births in 1938 than in 1937.

The decline in the infant mortality rate, which started in 1926, was pronounced, he said.

"The 1938 rate of 38.6 per 1000 live births shows a decided trend from 1937 figures of 43.8, and is the lowest infant mortality rate recorded by the state," he said. "The infant mortality rate in 1926 was 73.4 per thousand births."

Cook reported that in 1938 there were 13,224 more births registered than deaths.

Public Ownership Of El to Continue

The Boston Elevated will remain under public ownership as a result of a vote in the Senate.

Senators voted "no" on a measure for information concerning the advisability of returning the road to private ownership. It was stated that the Metropolitan District now owns $127,000,000 of the Elevated, while private control has but $25,000,000 left.

SAYS EVERYBODY IS HYPNOTIZED

A strange method of mind and body control, that often leads to immense powers never before experienced is announced by Edwin J. Dingle, well-known explorer and geographer. It is said to bring about almost unbelievable improvement in power of mind. Many report improvement in health. Others acquire superb bodily strength, secure better positions, turn failure into success. Often with surprising speed, talents ability and a more magnetic personality are developed.

The method was found in remote and mysterious Tibet, formerly a forbidden country, rarely visited by outsiders, and often called the land of miracles in the astounding books written about it. Here, behind the highest mountains in the world, Mr. Dingle learned the extraordinary system he is now disclosing to the Western world.

He maintains that all of us are giants in strength and mind-power, capable of surprising feats, from the delay of old age to the prolonging of youth, and the achievement of dazzling business and professional success. From childhood, however, we are hypnotized, our powers put to sleep, by the suggestions of associates, by what we read, and by various experiences. To realize their really marvelous powers, men and women must escape from this hypnotism. The method found by Mr. Dingle in Tibet is said to be remarkably instrumental in freeing the mind of the hypnotizing ideas that paralyze the giant powers within us.

A nine-thousand word treatise revealing many startling results of this system is now being offered by the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. B-7, Los Angeles, Calif. They offer to send it free to any readers of this paper who quickly send their names and addresses. Readers are urged to write them promptly, as only a limited number of the free treatises have been printed.

PARENTS RUSH TO AID GIRL WHO SLEW BABY

PHILADELPHIA, May 2—From the glory of a Hunter College graduation with high honors to the gray misery of a cell in Tombs here was the arc of adult life completed by Camille Ketchka, 27, today.

Held without bail on a charge of drowning her 10-day-old infant son in a Brooklyn terminal washstand was Miss Katchka.

Without bail, and without hope, too, was the slim young mother who sobbed and moaned at intervals.

"There's nothing left in life for me."

But she hadn't been told that her mother and father were speeding from New York, ready to call in medical and legal aid for the child police said left them three years ago in a quarrel over her gentleman sweetheart.

Deserted by the man, with a tiny babe she thought deformed, police said she had related drowning the baby, dressing it in lacy, dainty clothes and carrying it in her arms by train to this city before calling police.

Mine Operators In New Parley

NEW YORK, May 2 (INS)—Prospects for peace in the bituminous coal industry were believed enhanced today when Appalachian operators obtained from mine union leaders agreement to the operators' plea for a four-hour recess of their bargaining conference to permit discussions among the mine owners.

The recc came on the heels of a prior protracted caucus among operators at which proposals to meet the union demand for a closed shop or abolition of strike penalties were reportedly discussed.

Leaders Warn High Taxes Dooming City

orke, we all drown together. If she loses her prosperity, we shall all suffer together. In these days of competition any place with a handicap will suffer.

"Our handicap is that municipal government here costs more than any comparable place in the United States. Taxes are choking the prosperity of Boston.

URGES PUBLIC SUPPORT

"The mayor is trying to reduce the cost of city government, an he could do a great deal more if he had the support of public opinion. It simply depends on us.

"Do we care anything about it? The mass of the people have taken very little interest.

"We are now destroying our prosperity, mortgaging our future for lack of co-operative effort. We are selling our birthright for a mess of political pottage.

"To the youth of the city I would say: 'For your own future, wake up! Or else migrate to some other city where civic pride looms larger in the public mind than it does here.'"

The educator was cheered as he took his seat and Richard J. Lane, ex-member of the Boston school committee, a lawyer and civic leader, chairman of the meeting, again took over the proceedings.

WOULD CUT TEACHERS

The latter had some things to say on his own account.

"When I was a member of the school committee," he said, "I fought for larger wages for teachers. Now I advocate a slash in their wages. Let us cut the wages of these substantially paid.

"I don't mean to take the stripend from the scrubwomen of Boston City hospital."

He announced that Mayor Tobin has promised a "scientific investigation" of welfare, comparable, perhaps, to that just completed for the state, and one, he added, most drastically needed.

He charged that unscientific administration of relief has added to the tax rate.

He asserted that Boston City hospital has "become a great scientific institution for research. It wasn't created for that purpose, but we pay the bill."

All other phases of the condition were discussed by many other speakers.

50 'F. F'S OF U. S.' MOSTLY SMITH

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—The Social Security board selected today the "first 50 families" in the United States—not the wealthiest, but the most numerous on its rolls of workers having old age insurance accounts.

The Smiths, 418,000 strong, head the list. The Johnsons, Browns, Williamses, Millers and Joneses follow in order.

"Approximately 10 per cent of the 43,900,000 account numbers assigned under the old age insurance system are held by workers with one of the 50 names," said John J. Corson, director of the insurance bureau.

It is possible, he said, to find any individual's card in less than five minutes. And that's a bigger job than it sounds, for 5000 Thompsons—as an example—are named John.

The records show that more than 10 per cent of all the workers have a last name beginning with S. In second place is M, and in third B.

After the six most common names, the others in the first 50 rank as follows:

Davis, Anderson, Wilson, Taylor, Thomas, Moore, White, Martin, Thompson, Jackson, Harris, Lewis, Allen, Hall, Green, Robinson, Baker, King, Nelson, Adams, Roberts, Phillips, Evans, Turner, Rogers, Edwards, Bell, Bailey, Fisher, Bennett, Butler, Foster, Walker, James, Cohen, Jenkins, Ellis, Jordan, Burke, Brooks, Johnston, Elliott, Black, Nichols and Owens (last two tied for 50th place).

Mongrel Dog Wins Fame as Blood Donor

STAUNTON, Va., May 2 (AP)—Jack, a three-year-old hound of mixed breed, is without pride of ancestry, but may well claim blood relationship to some of the snootier canine aristocracy of Virginia.

Jack is a valuable ally of Dr. Charles Robert Pastors, Staunton veterinarian, and has given 18 or 20 blood transfusions within the past year to dogs suffering from serious injuries or illness.

Should necessity arise, Dr. Pastors says, the dog could be "tapped" two or three times a week. The transfusions are valuable for building up the constitutions of dogs suffering from distemper.

Jack's reward: He gets the very best of food in order to keep him in the "pink" of condition.

days" in 1935, it was customary to dole out $5 and $10 to individual workers who needed money for necessities and to take signed vouchers for the amounts, to be deducted later from their salaries.

SIGNED BLANK CHECKS

Under cross-examination she admitted that O'Brien, when he was to be absent for any time, would sign blank checks and that she or Miss Farrell would fill them out to make needed payments for city obligations.

Also in the matter of carrying money to the bank, this was divided between O'Brien, Miss Farrell and herself, the witness said.

Preceding her on the stand briefly today was the present city treasurer, Thomas Kelley, who said an attempt is being made now in a storage place to find the Revere cash books for 1932, 1933 and 1934, when O'Brien was treasurer.

Also, he said, officials of the First National Bank are endeavoring to find deposit slips for Revere in those years.

TWO AUDITORS TESTIFY

T. Joseph Whalen, connected with the State Division of Accounts, and one of the auditors who found the shortage, identified a cash book today as one used in the audit.

He said there was no entry found to account for the tax title payments of $2000.63 and $357 claimed by two Revere residents to have been made in 1934 to the city treasurer's office.

He also testified he examined the bills included in the money mysteriously "found" after a shortage was announced and that it was learned the bills were of an issue subsequent to the discovery of the shortage.

George A. Hammond, another state auditor, gave corroborating testimony.

Spellman Used Plane In Tour of Americas

MESSAGE FROM POPE

Three masses were chanted here in honor of the anniversary of Bishop Spellman's consecration and two of them were sung by emissaries of the Pope, himself, Pius XI. . . Such was the esteem in which the Vatican held the young Boston bishop.

An again he embarks on a mission for the Vatican, a study of the church and its affair in South America.

By JACK CONWAY

Copyright, 1939, by the Boston Evening American, Inc.

The deep attachment of Pope Pius XII for Archbishop Spellman has been told here. The similar affection of the late Pope Pius XI likewise showed how the Boston prelate's qualities won him the regard of all.

On September 8, 1937, fifth anniversary of Bishop Spellman's consecration, Pope Pius XI wrote a touching message of felicitation to His Excellency which was conveyed to him by Monsignor Alfred Ottavian.

[illegible] the Monsignor and his companion, Monsignor Principe, of the Secretariate of state, remained with the Bishop as his guests for two days. Again special services were held in the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Adding to Bishop Spellman's happiness, an excellent painting of him, the work of Willard W. Cummings, who holds degrees from Yale and from the Ecole Julien at Paris was presented His Excellency. During the same Diocesan meeting he was appointed Diocesan Consultor.

The kindly heart of Pope Pius XII, then Cardinal Pacelli, was shown when his unfailing memory inspired His Holiness to write Bishop Spellman a day or [illegible] following beautiful message.

"Within a few days will occur the anniversary of the day on which the soul of your dear mother went to Heaven, and I shall remember her in Holy Mass that day, not only praying for her, but imploring from her every help and every divine blessing for your priestly and pastoral ministry."

Through his long sojourn at Rome, where he met every high church dignitary of his own country Bishop Spellman had gained a intimate knowledge of the status of religion throughout North America.

Wishing to equip himself with [illegible] information regarding the progress of the church in South American nations, he set forth on an arduous journey in the spring of 1938. The bishop's visit covered every nation in [illegible] America except [illegible]

Flying twice over the [illegible] Andes to reach [illegible] wise inaccessible regions, His Excellency came into personal contact with conditions facing the Church in those far places. DEFEND LIBRARY MURALS

[illegible] by [illegible] of the [illegible] of [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible]

"Outstanding examples of the irrational attitude of painters of this generation toward [illegible] were his words before an audience at Buffalo, N. Y., to describe the work of two modern masters whose works have honor places in the local library.

[illegible] Hart, Schaffner and Marx.

"The theory of artists of this date," Untermeyer said, "is that anything that is common is [illegible] sale; anything that is [illegible] is ordinary; anything that is ordinary is vulgar. As a result their paintings deal largely with myths and legends.

"America today is developing a culture all her own, not only in painting but in other arts, that is far superior to anything produced in modern times."

Ousting of Backus Up to State Board

Charging John H. Backus, director of the [illegible] division, had falsely accused him of hidden motives in asking the legislature to abolish [illegible] Governor Curley said today he will ask removal of Backus by the commissioners of the department [illegible]

"He then resigned from [illegible] over [illegible] at request.

In separating his case [illegible] the governor said:

"I am going to send a written communication to the public utilities commissioners in which I will state the facts. In my opinion, these facts constitute cause for action on their part. I hope to do this this afternoon.

"I did this because the law gives the commissioners the right to act."

ACCUSES BACKUS

The governor asserted:

"Assuming the department of public utilities commissioners do not remove Mr. Backus, will you take further action toward that end?"

"That remains to be seen, replied the governor.

Asked what he would [illegible] on the question, he said:

"There are two general causes. In the first place, as a servant of the Commonwealth he (Backus) accused the governor, in submitting matters to the legislature, of tainted motives.

"Secondly, that he made false statements to the governor in his office."

Asked if he had talked [illegible] Attorney General [illegible] Attorney before the hearing [illegible] matter on state [illegible] Tolbert, the governor replied [illegible] heads the commission [illegible] be called.

NAMED BY CURLEY

Backus, a former assistant attorney general, Governor James M. Curley was appointed by [illegible] of the Curley administration.

Three members of the Public Utilities Commission, constituting a majority of the five, [illegible] were appointed to their jobs by Curley. They are Abraham G. Webber, Richard Grant and John J. Curley.

Visit to Court Means Trouble

As he was leaving the Somerville district court, Willard street, this morning where he had been to the clerk's office inquiring regarding parking tags, Henry R. Vander Wyk, 21, of Central street, Somerville, was arrested by Safety Officer George R. Phillips, Jr., on the charge of operating an automobile without a license.

Officer Phillips stepped up to the machine and asked Vander Wyk for his license. He informed the officer he was not produced the policeman on the [illegible] printed last month.

Taken into court, he was arraigned before Judge Charles F. Gael by whom [illegible] him guilty and imposed a fine of $10. Sentence was suspended until May 15.

Callahan Still Holds Public Works Power

William F. Callahan, state commissioner of public works, today still held all his powers, following a reversal of the state senate's bill seeking to take from him the right to hire workers and bosses.

The Senate, which earlier had passed the measure, failed to kill the bill on a roll-call.

Welcome Spring

with a car set to go places!

NOW'S the time to rid your car of winter sluggishness—give it new life and power for Spring and Summer. Here's the sure and certain way to do it—

Drive to your nearest Jenney dealer and—

1 —Get a Solvenized Treatment, 50c. We'll put through your motor the concentrate we blend with Solvenized Gasoline. It dissolves gum, the binder of carbon, and lets carbon-laden clouds blow out the exhaust. Compression, power, mileage go up and sluggishness disappears.

2 —Change thin, winter-worn lubricants in transmission and differential to safe Jenney lubricants of summer quality.

3 —Drain the sludge of winter from your crankcase and fill with Solvenoil—the oil that lubricates safely and surely at all driving speeds and heats.

4 —Fill up with Jenney Solvenized—the gasoline that carries you farther, faster, with more power, quicker get-away.

Of course we'll give you other services, too, but these are the big things in getting ready for more driving pleasure at less driving cost. Remember—Jenney guarantees more mileage, higher efficiency, important savings.

HISTORIC GEM—Loretta Young and Spring Byington wear the styles of long ago in "The Story of Alexander Bell," opening Thursday at Keith Memorial with previews tomorrow night.

'Alexander Graham Bell' Opens at Keith's Thursday

Lewis F. Zalmas's production of "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell," starring Don Ameche in the title role, and Loretta Young and Henry Fonda sharing similar honors, will have its Boston premiere Thursday at Keith Memorial theatre.

"The Return of the Cisco Kid," starring Warner Baxter, will be the companion feature.

"The Story of Alexander Graham Bell" will have its preview showings tomorrow evening at the first at 7 and the second at 9:30.

"The Story of Alexander Graham Bell" is the drama of a great man and the love that inspired him. It is the story of an obscure young scientist's struggles, disinterested financial backers, his desperate battle against public ridicule and powerful opponents, his ultimate triumph, the flame of his genius kept alive by the love and faith of the woman he adored.

So intense was the struggle against powerful conflicting and powerful opponents a struggle which prevented his marriage to the girl he loved, that he halted on the threshold of his invention feeling that he thought he could find happiness with Mabel Hubbard. But the courageous Mabel spurred on the deserted inventor and believed when could talk through a wire.

Included in the cast are Charles Coburn, Gene Lockhart, Spring Byington and the three sisters of Loretta Young, Sally Polly Ann Young and Georgiana Young.

ELSIE JANIS ACCLAIMED AS FRANK FAY'S SHOW OPENS

Gala Stage Fare at Shubert

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Alley Oop, love's the answer for all . . ." was how Elsie Janis and you began to believe it was on Sidney Clark's Frank Fay's Show, which opened last night at the Shubert.

It's quite some time since Miss Janis, Mrs. Gilbert Wilson to private life, has trod upon the boards and the occasion of the A. E. F. Post was memorable. That party last night was and all that. But Lightfoot Lady might have been left in the wayside.

But not our Elsie. Here is as fine singing and birdseed a performance as it ever was. She is as magnetic a stage personality as she was in her prime. But what an impertinence! This is her prime and she couldn't be better.

With the softest cadence in the palm of her artistic hands the darling of the A. E. F. let us know last night that the good old days may be good enough for the fellows, thank you so kindly, but she'd take these hectic pollen times insecure as they may be.

She gave us impersonations of George M. Cohan, Fanny Brice, Helen Hayes, Beatrice Lillie (about she knew before she was a lady) and the revered Will Rogers, carrying a line a chaney [illegible] and finally [illegible] of the other. It was an old story some [illegible] was a fantastic parade [illegible] of yesterday [illegible].

AT 7 A. M., in one of those Hollywood bars which only Robert Benchley can discover at 7 a. m., a man standing next to Benchley turned to him and said: "Stars Fell on Orchi Chornya". . . The startled humorist stared at the stranger and said: "Say that again". . . "Stars Fell on Orchi Chornya," the man repeated. The fascinated Benchley took the stranger to his home and locked him for three weeks, plying him with food, wine, and even permitting him to wear Benchley's most expensive lounging robes – but not once did the man speak . . . After three weeks the stranger finally said: "I spoke too soon. I guess I shot my bolt, eh?" – and walked out.

A MAJOR Hollywood studio, preparing to screen a [illegible] & Hall story about the sea, wired its New York representative to hire Beebe as a consultant and perhaps to appear in a few scenes . . . The representative immediately got in touch with Lucius Beebe who was somewhat aged, played coy, and mentioned a rather significant amount of money as a precondition to his going to Hollywood . . . The N. Y. representative therefore wired his office this week: "Can Get Lucius Beebe, But Will Require Big Dough" . . . Back came the reply: "Who Mentioned Lucius? The Beebe We Want Is the Deep-Sea Explorer. WILLIAM Beebe."

LISTEN, WORLD! -:- -:- By Elsie Robinson

HE WANTS to be a columnist! How on earth did I get a kick out of it? There must be Thrills! But perhaps I would help him to know some of the handicaps beforehand so what I please tell him what's the hardest part about doing a job like this?

Is it the studying? Or meeting so many people? Or the long hours? Or the battle With One's Temperament? Or having to think up something new every day? Or the [illegible] Stupidity of the Ignorant Masses?

No, [illegible] as none of these. As a matter of fact, until you mentioned them I hadn't realized that such [illegible] were supposed to form part of My Hard Lot.

How [illegible] about the "Terrible Stupidity of the Ignorant Masses" for example. Most of the masses I've met are so much smarter than I that I have to have the answers written on my cuff to even keep up with them.

No, FOR THINKING up Something New, according to all the Best Editorial Minds there have been only about three new thoughts since the year 4598 B. C. And I didn't think any of 'em.

So [illegible] of the [illegible] is a [illegible] to this particular [illegible] work. The hardest part about a job like this is something you've never foreseen in any of your glamorous dreams a fact which you'll meet with plenty of scorn when you do hear it. Nevertheless it's true.

The hardest part about a job like this is JUST STAYING PUT.

Squatting on a spot and sticking to your squat!

Yes, I realize that's a horrid way to put it, stranger. After all the lovely things you've had of writing. And

I can quite appreciate your suggestion of my gross materialism. I felt that way, too, the first time a regular writer handed me the [illegible] check. In [illegible] letters. For months I regarded the [illegible] with profound contempt.

So that was all I got out of the Soul's Glorious Struggle for Expression! was it? And all the rest, the Flaming Visions, the Lofty Vows, the Magnificent Triumphs they were [illegible]

SQUATTING ON A SPOT and sticking to [illegible] squat! That might [illegible] for the [illegible] But not for me! Art, for me, should be a [illegible] I would weep. I would write [illegible]

Yes, I [illegible] how I felt [illegible] when I was young and [illegible] [illegible] I loved and [illegible] Boy. And now I'm telling you. You won't believe it. You won't take it. You'll go [illegible] and keep yourself into a lather in your [illegible] to show the world how a red-hot human should act.

But in the end you'll be forced to realize as we all have done, that it's the Eternal Feminine, not the Divine Spark, which is the secret of success.

Socialites Attend Shubert Premiere

BOSTONIANS ARE FAR FAMED for their knowledge and culture, yet part of Frank Fay's Show which opened at the Shubert Theater last evening was completely over their heads! . . . Pardon us for being cynical, but the climax of the show, which is a revival of old time vaudeville, with stooges in the audience and everything, is the act of a tight rope walker who walks right over the audience on a rope stretched on a sharp incline from the stage to the second balcony . . .

Just having him walk up the rope some 30 or 40 feet over their heads made most of the ladies pick up their wraps and decide which way to run if he fell . . . but when he crouched down in sort of a French split and slid all the way down to the stage again they got a thrill they'll remember for quite some time . . . Italian Junior Leaguers Sponsor Carnival Benefit

A committee of enterprising Italian Junior Leaguers is busy with plans to transform the Renaissance Room of the Hotel Touraine into a street scene in Italy for its most pretentious event of the year, an Italian Carnival, May 10.

To make further plans for the event, Philomena Caputo will entertain her committee members at tea at her home Sunday. Among the features on the group will be the performance of the Tarantella, an Italian folk dance, by a group of talented club members, headed by Ellen De Benedictis.

Among the members performing will be Edith Graziano, Elsie Angelo, Annette DeJesse, Dorothy Giarla and Georgina Nazzaro.

Street singers, balloon vendors, hurdy-gurdies will all lend their color to the affair to aid the milk fund for undernourished children.

In charge of the ticket committee is Mrs. Charles Bocchino of Malden, whose aides include Esther Nazzaro, of Boston, Gertrude Mobilia of Medford, Mary Luchette of Newton and Mary Petrozelli.

Serving light refreshments during the fiesta is a bevy of pretty club members headed by Mrs. Joseph Anastasi of Dorchester.

MARIE NICASTRO, member of the Junior League of the Women's Italian Club, will direct the raffle at the Italian Carnival, May 10, at the Hotel Touraine.

Urges Business Truce Be Signed

A truce [illegible] signed by government and business in order to restore confidence and prosperity . . . That is the suggestion offered to the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants by Clem W. Collins.

The attractive proposal was made during the address "Accountants in the Public Interest" at a meeting of the Society in the Parker House last night. Mr. Collins who is president of the American Institute of Accountants, offered 10 points of cooperation. The five for government were: Tax reforms, embracing permission to deduct all capital losses and discarding of the undistributed profits-tax . . . Appointment of a non-partisan commission to recommend a permanent Federal tax policy. Amendment of social security laws to limit amount to present 2 per cent. Giving employers equal rights with employees in disputes. And stop gap of extension of government control over business.

Clem W. Collins

FOR BUSINESS . . . Mr. Collins suggested . . . Adoption of some policy by which stockholders have a part in selecting independent auditors. . . . Appointment of auditors at the beginning rather than the end of the year. . . . Abandonment of dangerous economizing through limiting scope of audits. . . . Adoption of natural business year as basis of accounting. . . .

And finally, a halt on calling new corporate names. J. Harold Stewart, of Stewart, Watts & Bollong, tells us the Boston address by Mr. Collins was the first of a series before Eastern state societies.

STATE STREETERS . . . Did their part to make today's Federal Hall budget meeting a success. . . . A memorandum sent all tenants in the area by the Alliance was largely responsible . . . Particularly as it contained a thorough going analysis of the effect ruinous taxation was exerting on city building. . . . Expect A. Hale president of the N. E. Federal Savings, wrote the analysis of building trends which pointed out that while permits issued last month in Massachusetts showed a healthy rise the improvement was limited to a few suburban towns . . . Building and business of homes is lagging badly in the cities . . . And Mr. Hale says the record show the serious need for action on the part of city governments and local groups . . . And it may well begin with tax reforms.

EARNINGS GAIN . . . Is seen for electric and gas utilities. By the United Business Service of Boston. Which is a pleasant contrast to some of the bearish talk circulating about investing in industrial circles. . . . While government competition is still considered a problem the political outlook seem as reasonably brighter. . . . And a saner attitude on the part of federal power authorities toward valuation and purchase of private systems is looked upon as helpful. . . . While the reasonableness of the SEC in enforcing the Holding Company Act is encouraging. . . . Finally rate structures are, on the whole, satisfactory and no major cost increases are in prospect . . .

War Called Plague For Generations

War wrenches a national economy out of its equilibrium, and distorts the processes of production. Thus, it creates maladjustments and disparities, which remain to pleague peoples for a generation.

A curious phase of the existing armed pace in Europe is that most of the nations are already substantially on a war footing.

Thus, the transition in case of a actual outbreak would not be a violent occurrence as in 1914.

Great Britain is the last of the major Europe powers to shift gradually from a peace to a war basis.

Referring to this as it beats of the expectation for dividends of the common stockholders, the London Economist points out:

"Indeed, if the gradual assimilation of the economic system to a war time basis proceeds to the point of full employment and defense priorities, he may have to prepare himself for the possibility of some form of dividend control on the German model."

An American financial estimate of the martial spirit in Europe is given in the current letter of the National City Bank of New York, which declares:

"The adjustment of the economic organization to a war basis, in the countries concerned, has already gone to lengths never before reached in time of peace.

"Of course, the business of the totalitarian countries has been on a war basis for a long time; the allocation of labor and commodities among enterprises is in effect controlled by the state, and armament work and accumulation of reserve supplies have priority, now, as if war were being waged."

Thus, even if the situation goes on further than the current bloodless warfare based on bluff and propaganda, it would prove enormously expensive.

Though guaranteed $150,000 for her share of the London profits, Sonja—a smart girl with a pencil—figures the triple tax (U. S. A word for Peter Paul Bowser, whose Astounding Aggregation of Educational Mat Oddities I have so often wopped as a hilarious, goofy travesty. To be sure wrestling has put a strain on the people's credulity, but Pere Paul, in person, has always been a square-dealer in his money relations with the mat mujiks and enjoys a sterling reputation as a local citizen. As a personality he is likeable, charitable and forgiving. Personally I trust that his skin rodeos, with their harmless hoople, continue to prosper. For we of the sport writing business need something to get outraged about and the people need something as an outlet to their internal poisons. We don't want to go around feeling glad about professional sport all the time.

Curiosa Criticism

AMONG THE CURIOSA ON DISPLAY at the World's Fair Academy of Sport are (quote from the catalogue) "A section of the Yale Fence, the Sugar Bowl, the Heavyweight championship belt . . ." The Yale fence is all right—the only section of the original wooden, half mile barrier now extant being a ten foot length used for photographing Yale sport captains. But my understanding of the Sugar Bowl is the big concrete and steel dimple belonging to Tulane University. And the last official Heavyweight boxing belt was the $10,000 diamond and gold stamacher given to John L. Sullivan in the middle '80's, long since mislaid. Incidentally the Bruins have sent the Stanley Cup to be displayed with the America, the Davis and the Wightman Cups.

Criticisms mailed to this pillar on Frankie Frisch's radio technique are various. A few praise his terse, nasal diction. More deplore the absence of Fred Hunt's genial, skeleton style. The single time that I have heard Frisch he sounded like a professional barker at a Carnival midway. The information was there, but Fred's fath rly articulation was not. So there is a strong possibility that Frankie, whose heart is in the players' field will be called to take command of a National League team before the russets and ochres of autumn tip the summer foliage. Prediction is a possibility.

MEADE RELATES HIS SUCCESSES AT N. ORLEANS

This is the third article in which Don Meade, famous jockey, tells of his sensational riding career. Meade frankly admitted he was rightfully suspended for betting on other horses than his own on which he was riding, but is thankful he was never accused of pulling a horse or "fixing" a race. Continue Meade's story today.

By DON MEADE

(As told to Dave Wilson and Jack Conway)

The winter of 1930 found me riding at New Orleans for Sam Orr. New Orleans has always attracted some of the better horses during the winter months.

Florida had not become such an important racing center in 1930 as it is now, and many of the stables that now ship to Hialeah Park and Tropical Park used to do their winter racing at New Orleans. I was [illegible] South Africa.

When I started riding at New Orleans for Sam Orr I made up my mind I was going to be the leading jockey there. I was not the leading jockey, but I was one of the stewards asked me one day:

"Who taught you to ride, boy?"

I told him I never had been taught. I just picked it up. When I got a mount riding I tried to win. That's all there was to it.

LEAD IN WINNERS

At first I was at a disadvantage because I was a white boy and had to ride against colored boys. Before the season was over, however, I was the leading jockey. I got $10 for each mount I rode. When my book was counted I found I was the leading jockey.

Under the rules of racing an owner must pay a rider $25 if he scratches a horse after the jockey has been to the paddock to get on. When Sam Orr scratched a horse I had a leg with [illegible] and sent most of the money home to help support my mother and father.

I did not get rich that winter. Money was hard to get, and I had to ride for $10 a race. But I was the leading jockey, and that was the main thing.

When I brought Broker's Tip in a winner in the 1933 Kentucky Derby, I was paid $5000. This represented 10 per cent of the 50,000 purse.

LOST BIG IN 1930

In the summer of 1930 my contract was sold to Miss Dorothy Watson and I went to ride at New Orleans. I had a big string of horses and I should have had the ride on most of the winning ones.

I was then placed in complete charge of the stable and I had a free hand. I was the leading rider and that I could do was [illegible].

[illegible] I was a young jockey and I made [illegible] and [illegible] I was [illegible] and [illegible] I was [illegible] and [illegible] I was

MAY WE INTRODUCE you to "The Grandstand Manager?" It is Boston's latest and snappiest sports column. It is written by the fans who call their shots as they see them.

YOU may contribute to "The Grandstand Manager." Keep your letters under 100 words, write on only one side of the paper, and mail your letters to "The Grandstand Manager," Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

"The Grand Stand Manager will also feature yesterday's heroes." This will be the Bees and Red Sox regulars and also their pitchers who show to advantage. There will be a point system in scoring and at the end of the season the winners will be awarded Gruen wrist watches.

The Grand Manager will also answer baseball queries.

Here is today's man.

"I may be a sucker at the races, but I can certainly call my shots in baseball. Didn't I tell you early last March that the Bees would prove the sensation of the National League this year."

Casey Stengel and his gallant crew are leading the National League today. I don't claim the Bees will win the pennant, but any club that can lick the Giants three straight is going to finish in the first division.

I shall be interested in reading what those baseball writers who could only see the Red Sox now have to say about the Stengels. Three whooping for the Bees, Casey Stengel and Bob Quinn.

Elcewicz Nominated Grid Coach

Head Coach William Elbery of the Cambridge High and Latin football team was virtually ousted from his post by the School Committee at last night's meeting with its refusal to present his name for reappointment.

In place of Elbery's name the athletic committee headed by John J. Carver submitted the name of Adam Elcewicz former Fordham star who has been serving as assistant coach.

The Elbery appointment over Elcewicz last season led to a two-to-two tie vote of the football team. Throughout the season, however, Elcewicz served as assistant to Elbery.

ERISOFI NAMED

Frank Erisoft, former [illegible] Latin and Harvard football star was nominated in place of Elcewicz as assistant coach.

Asked by Committeeman Wood why Elbery was not reappointed [illegible] stated:

"I think Elcewicz is a better man."

The Elcewicz appointment must lay on the table for one week under the committee rule. Much controversy is expected when the final vote is taken on the appointment at the next meeting in two weeks hence.

Sweet words were whispered into the ear of Bill Posedel by the missus last night after William turned back the Giants to clean up the three-game series. Bill set the Giants down, 7 to 2, and pitched one of the finest games witnessed at the Beehive this year. He has assured himself of a starting role in the future.

RIBBING BY GIANTS ENCOURAGED POSEDEL

By WALTER KILEY

Bill Posedel who rubbed salt into the open wounds of the Giants when he beat them 7 to 2 with a smashing four-hit Monday performance, worked tirelessly in preparation for his masterful pitching achievement.

"I ran tolles every day chasing fly balls in the outfield so I'd be ready when the big call came," he said after his victory.

"Posedel pitched a great ball game," said Catcher Al Lopez . . . "He had everything, a snappy breaking curve ball, an occasional slow ball, but something few hurlers boast, a fast one with a hop on it and a fast one with a nasty sinker on it when it came in low . . . He's a lot faster than he looks . . . I'd say he's about the fastest man on our staff."

Posedel is very blond . . . gaun in appearance . . . is married an has a wife installed in a Bosto apartment . . . He was tickled when the chance came to pitch for Boston . . . as he figured he could do better than mere relief performances.

PLAYED WITH DODGERS

He's of German descent . . . won 20 games for Portland in the Coast League in 1935, 23 in 1936 and 21 in 1937 . . . Last year he won eight and lost nine for Brooklyn.

He took an unmerciful riding from the Giants bench from start to finish . . . from Cliff Melton in particular . . . the Terrymen constantly reminding him during the first seven innings of his "great" no-hit pitching . . . But he was as fresh and unconcerned at the end as he was in the opening inning . . . and thanking his good fortune which had him out there shagging flies endlessly and preparing his legs for a winning achievement.

As a matter of fact there was more riding between the rival benches than any series recently . . . Manager Casey Stengel taking particular delight in rubbing it in to Terry for the latter's caustic and belittling remarks concerning the Bees.

"I don't have to run this ball club," Stengel later remarked . . . "It runs itself . . . I'll just pay all my attention to the newspapermen." . . . Later he said . . . "Sure I'm happy . . . I love this winning business, particularly when it's at the expense of Terry and the Giants.

"If they were happy on their way back to New York they're welcome to it . . . I know I wouldn't be if I were in their shoes . . . But boy, how they'll rub it in on me, if they ever get us on the run later in the season."

TONY HITS HOMER

In the press of excitement over the fine pitching of Posedel, the fact might be overlooked that Tony Cuccinello shot a mighty homer into the left field bleachers, scoring West and Simmons ahead of him in the third inning . . . accounting for three large runs which just about made certain the win . . . the day before Tony had been robbed of a similar homer into the teeth of a strong wind when the breeze just held it from going over.

He gets a new wrist watch from Lee "Whiteny, manager of the Kenmore, for the first homer of the Beehive season.

Terry was fit to be tied throughout the Bees' series . . . after Saturday's defeat he held school until long into the evening . . . as Al Simmons can tell you . . . He was waiting outside the dressing room for Zeke Bonura, his old Washington teammate . . . and he had a long, long wait.

Colonel William's face must have been red . . . for he deliberately kept Harry Gumbert out of yesterday's game, saving him for the Reds today and after using three pitchers, finally had King Hubbell warming up . . . and changed his lineup all over the lot in desperation, . . . but to no avail . . . Chances are, too, that Terry will have no more patience with George Myatt, his third baseman . . . He used Chiozza in the second game but tried one last stab at Myatt yesterday.

Diz's Arm Sore; Faces Long Rest

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP)—The famed $185,000 right arm of Jerome "Dizzy" Dean is apparently no better than it was when he "throwed himself out" against the New York Yankees in the World Series last October.

That was the impression prevailing today after Dean's first pitching assignment of the year. He faced the Chicago White Sox in a benefit game which netted between $25,000 and $30,000 for Monty Stratton, one-time Sox pitching ace.

Until then, Dean had pitched only two innings since the Yankees crushed him, and his performance was anything but impressive.

The Sox whacked him for seven hits in four innings to win 4 to 1 and unanimously asserted he didn't have a thing.

HARTNETT UNHAPPY

Dean may be lost to the Cubs until at least mid-summer. The colorful pitcher, after working four innings, admitted his arm was sore, that it was weak and tired.

"There's no use kidding myself," Dean moaned. "It really hurts.

"It's sore as the deuce up here," pointing to a muscle over his shoulder. But he hastened to add: "It isn't sore where it was last year, under the shoulder-blade.

"I'll just have to take things easy, I guess. I think it is just weakness. It looks like I'll have to strengthen my arm, that's all."

Dean complained he couldn't get warmed up because of the frigid temperature. His pitching cunning failed, partly because his control wasn't even close to perfection.

There was none of the free-arm fireballing that made him famous; there was more body than arm motion in his pitches.

Dean was disheartened, and apparently so was Manager Gabby Hartnett, but the latter declined comment. Hartnett probably will tactfully nurse the "great one" along until the hot weather sets in before giving him another pitching chance.

STRATTON ENRICHED

"I threw only a few fast balls," Dean explained, "and never did get quite warmed up. It was colder than the north pole out there.

"That's why I threw as quick as I could. I thought I had a good curve ball but they began belting it."

Chicago's baseball fans turned out 25,954 strong to raise a fund for Stratton, who lost his right leg at the knee in a hunting accident last November.

All the gross receipts, including concessions, were turned over to the gangling Texan. Even the baseball writers, the players, umpires and the ushers paid their way into the park.

COLD WEATHER HALTS SOX IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., May 2—Cold weather, bane of the Red Sox since the season started, greeted the club on its first invasion of the West today and forced postponement of this afternoon's contest with the Cleveland Indians.

Although Joe Cronin has chewed his fingernails to the quick from continued idleness, today's postponement was not hard to take for the Sox manager himself, as well as Ted Williams and Jimmy Foxx, have been under the weather from colds and needed the extra day of rest.

Elden Auker, submarine flinger obtained from Detroit, had been scheduled to hurl against Willis Hudlin this afternoon, and Cronin announced that Elden would pitch tomorrow if the weather warms up at all.

Auker, always considered a late starter, although he pitched well in the South, has fared poorly in both his pitching attempts to date.

His main trouble has been lack of control.

In his first appearance Auker passed five men in one-third of an inning.

Auker must get going if the Sox are to pull away from the Yanks on this trip, which they should do with Joe DiMaggio out of the lineup.

The Sox are tied for the league leadership with their New York rivals and need only consistent pitching to assure them of staying there.

Tech's Trainer Prays for Rain

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2 (AP)—The Derby atmosphere was as pleasant as the mint juleps along Fourth street; the field was about complete for the 65th running of the Kentucky classic Saturday. And still, Herbert M. Woolf, ownerof Technician, the "People's Chereе" from the West, wanted just a little something more today.

"Now," said the big clothing store and movie theater man from Kansas City, "if the rainmakers just decide to hold a convention here Saturday, we should have a pretty fair chance."

Woolf, who sent Lawrin out to win the $50,000 pot of gold a year ago, has come back this season with a very nice race-horse in the bay son of Inaco, which sired the 1938 conqueror.

He figures his Hopeful is the best horse in the field of a dozen or so expected to go to the post but, with typical business acumen, he would like to be sure of it.

FEARS ONLY JOHNSTOWN

And, playing them close to the vest, he believes that weather, lots of it—and plenty damp—will turn the trick against the only one he fears, William Wodward's Johnstown.

Technician, W. E. Boeing's Porter's Mite and seven other Derby eligibles get their final competitive "prep" chance today in the second running of the Derby trial.

The outcome of this mile gallop figures to cut all but the top two or three finishers from Saturday's starting field.

Woolf's Hopeful and the Boeing bay, top-weighted at 118 pounds, stand out in the event with W. H. Whitehouse's American Byrd, ridden by Charley Kurtsinger, a "dark horse."

DOWNS SLOWER

Woolf expressed his hope for rain "insurance" today as racing lovers, already treated to a sight of most all of the colts expected to answer when "My Old Kentucky Home" echoes over beautiful Churchill Downs Saturday, turned out to watch the arrival of Johnstown, Joe E. Brown's T. M. Dorset and the Earle Sande-trained Heather Broom, which worked the full mile and a quarter in 2:06 at Kneeland yesterday.

"Certainly," Woolf admitted, "Johnstown is going to be tough. But no owner yet has held a patent on the derby, so we have a pretty fair chance.

"Don't forget, Johnstown has been running at Jamaica, where the footing is faster than here at the Downs. And that gives Technician a definite edge, because he's been here for several weeks and has proved he can go on this track. Also, he has the master-trainer in Ben Jones.

"But, just to be on the safe side, I've sent out a call through the South for the Rainmakers to come Saturday. If they do it should help us—definitely."

Braddock Plans For London Bout

NEW YORK, May 2 (INS)—James J. Braddock, former heavyweight champion of the world, announced that he definitely will begin a comeback within the next few weeks in England.

Braddock has been working out daily at a local gymnasium and will start sparring soon, he said, with a view to getting in shape for a bout late this month or early in June with Jack Doyle, Len Harvey, Eddie Phillips or Larry Gaines under the promotion of Sid Hulls, of London.

Fuller Gives Up Comeback Plan

Grand Circuit Post For Paul Bowser

SAMMY FULLER has definitely decided not to attempt another ring comeback . . . An effort had been made to match Fuller with Lou Ambers, No. 1 challenger for a bout with Henry Armstrong . . . Fuller is making a success of his Tremont street restaurant, and declared he could not devote the time necessary to get ready for a top boxer like Ambers.

Cocoa Kid, former New England welterweight champion, may get the next crack at Ambers . . . Fall River and Providence promoters are trying to sign a bout between Frankie Britt of Fall River, New England welterweight champion, and the heavy punching Ralph Zannelli.

Writing from Paris, Bertys Perry declares he has sent George Alexander Youssem, Petrograd heavyweight, to the United States seeking ring fame . . . Youssem is 23 years of age, six feet two inches tall and weighs 197 pounds . . . During his two years in the ring, Youssem has had 15 amateur and 10 professional bouts and has only met with one defeat . . . Perry managed Andre Lenglet, Paulino and other heavyweights who showed in the United States . . . Bertys asked to be remembered to Phil Buccola, Dan Carroll, Johnny Buckley and Eddie Mack.

"Tell Sergeant Mack to stick to Boston or they may incorporate him into the next war," writes Perry . . . "Over here everybody is jittery as the air is filled with war talk."

Bobby Ahearn writes from California that Francis Albertanti is doing the publicity for Boy Meadows . . . Francis at one time was publicity director for the Boston Garden, and was also associated with most of the big heavyweight bouts in New York during the past dozen years . . . Writing in the Sunday Advertiser, Albertanti picked Jimmy Braddock to win from Max Baer.

Joe Jacobs and Tony Galento in the company of Tony Palazolo, formerly of Boston, visited Bay Meadows—Galento toured the Coast under the direction of Palazolo . . . Galento, of course, told everybody who would listen to him that he will chill Joe Louis in their world's championship bout in New York on June 28.

Bowser Named Grand Circuit Official

PAUL BOWSER has been elected vice-president of the Grand Circuit and will be associated closely with a dozen men who can write checks for a million dollars . . . I visited the Grand Circuit meeting at Agawam last summer and was amazed at the amount of money that is invested in standard bred horses and in equipment . . . Greyhound and the other stars of the Grand Circuit travel in regal style.

Bowser is trying to develop another Tara or DeSota . . . Both of these famous horses were sold to an Italian syndicate for $15,000 each . . . Mussolini has done everything possible to encourage harness horse racing in Italy . . . Due to the fact racing was voted out in Hampden County, the only New England Grand Circuit meeting this year will be held at Old Orchard, Me.

The Old Orchard meeting is a New England home coming for Walter Cox, who always has his stable of trotters and pacers at that meeting . . . Supreme Court Justice Louis Cox usually visits with Walter at Old Orchard.

Bowser took time out from his duties as a Grand Circuit official to give his wrestling business some attention . . . He has signed Leo Numa, the Black Secret of other days, to collide with Gus Sonnenberg at the Garden on May 11.

Random Shots at Target

ONE WILL HAVE a better line on the Sox's pennant chances after their games with Cleveland and Detroit . . . The Sox play Cleveland today and tomorrow and then step into Detroit for a three games series . . . Cleveland has considerable strength, and should be much higher in the American League race than it is at present . . . Detroit has batting power, but lacks pitchers . . . The team is also going through quite a period of reorganization.

With the Yankees stumbling with Joe DiMaggio out of the game and Lou Gehrig playing much below his 1938 form, the Sox have an excellent chance to steal a march on rival clubs . . . The Sox problem is still pitching . . . Auker, Galehouse and Wade are still question marks . . . Auker is a warm weather pitcher, and should improve as the season progresses.

Unfortunately a game lost in May counts as much against the Sox as one lost in August . . . The Sox got their pitching break in the discovery of Woodie Rich and the unexpected comeback of old man Mose Grove.

I do not look for Grove to be able to take his regular turn in the box, but if he is spotted in games carefully he may win a dozen ball games before the season closes . . . This statement, of course, is made with the proviso that Grove's arm doesn't go dead on him again.

THANX TO ROBERT J. SEIFERT, CINCINNATI, O.

Ferry Winner Of Heavy Honors

Tony Ferry proved himself the best amateur heavyweight in New England when he won the Diamond Ring finals at the Boston Arena. Ferry scored a three round verdict over Peter Zollo and followed this up with a one round K. O. of George Murdock.

However, the real fireworks of the evening were provided by William Connolly and Larry Pacino, both of Roxbury, in the 160-pound final when Connolly came off the floor in the first round, weathered another barrage and then dropped Pacino three times in the second round and once in the final round to win this title.

Alex Belushko, who had scored the upset of the evening when he defeated Pat Devine of Cambridge in the 175-pound semi-finals when Devine was forced in the second round because of a cut eye, was tamed in the final by Tommy Sullivan of South Boston who was much too clever for Belushko.

Sullivan slowed Belushko down to a walk with some very well placed body punches to win a unanimous verdict.

The receipts were $2346 gross and $1859 net.

AMERICA'S MOST THRILLING STORY!

SCIENTIST. Young . . . obscure . . . evicted from his boarding house penniless. His name, Alexander Graham Bell! His dream, to span continents with the human voice!

FIRST LOVE. A slim, lovely stranger . . . an accidental meeting. This is the girl he is to marry! And her devotion is destined to be the inspiration for his great achievement!

EXPERIMENTS. Endless trying . . . constant hope! "Wouldn't it be funny if, out of Mabel's deafness, we invented the telephone and made the whole world hear!"

SUCCESS AT LAST. The news must be shared . . . his love declared! And she breathes, "Don't move! Don't speak! All my life, I want to remember this moment just as it is!"

HEART-BREAK. With triumph within reach, his invention is ridiculed . . . until Queen Victoria summons the young scientist . . . speaks over the wonder-instrument!

CRISIS! Return to America . . . the greatest test of all! "Shall the lonely scientist be told the world has no need of him the moment his work is done?"
